THREE DIE WHEN TRAINS CRASH

Four Nations In Search For Missing U. S. Airmen

COMBINE HUNT FOR MEN LOST ON AIR TRIP

Fears Growing That Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer Have Perished

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Four nations combined today in an attempt to locate Bert Hassell and Parker D. Cramer, missing now for more than 48 hours on their attempt to fly to Greenland, while fears grow that the men had perished at sea.

The coast guard cutter Marion now is operating in Davis Straits, between Labrador and Greenland, and reported by radio that there was slight probability the men still were alive.

"There was a stiff northwest gale Sunday and if the plane landed on the water the chances are infinitesimal that it could have remained afloat more than a few hours, regardless of its construction," a message from the Marion and intercepted by W. A. McClintock, a local radio amateur, said last night.

The Marion advised she was the only ship plying the Davis Straits—the last point from which the airplane, Greater Rockford, was heard—on the observation that the Rockford aviators had mapped out.

McClintock sent advice to the Hassell plane, which left Rockford, Ill., Thursday, on the ambitious attempt to fly to Stockholm, Sweden. It was one of the messages sent to the United States vessels in the northern area and was greatly similar to messages relayed to the governments of Canada, Denmark and Newfoundland urging a search for the two flyers.

The Marion confirmed receipt of the message and said she would continue the search on a greater scale through the Davis Straits. Storms have been sweeping the straits recently, the regular mid-summer storms, and this caused the Marion to believe that in event the Greater Rockford had landed on water she would have collapsed under pressure of the bitter waters.

The Greater Rockford now has long been exhausted of fuel. She was a land plane and not meant for a landing at sea, built for a landing on land, and had been pounded hard by the northern waters.

There was a chance—and it was this chance that made Hassell's friends hopeful—that the plane had succeeded in the long flight over the waterway between Labrador and Greenland and had landed on the island, some distance from Mt. Evans, the previously arranged spot.

Should this be the case it may be days and weeks before the true fate of the craft is known. There are virtually no communications on Greenland, save one or two small radio stations. Should the plane have skirted the coast line and come inland to the ice wastes of inner Greenland and should a safe landing have been made, it will be days before the flyers will be able to reach any of the coastal cities.

Their only mode of transportation will be by walking and even should they reach one of the northern fishing towns, the world may not know of it until they have been taken off by one of the mail carriers or fishing steamers that ply between Greenland and Newfoundland.

The Mt. Evans station has received no word of the flyers and advice to the Coast Guard Service said other stations on Greenland had reported the same disappearance news from word of Hassell.

"DOLLAR DAY" SET FOR THURSDAY

Sylvia June, Pumpkin Show Diver, Killed

Entertainer Who Thrilled Crowd With 65-Foot Dive Goes To Her Death.

The 1928 Circleville Pumpkin show will not feature the June Sisters in their high diving act for Sylvia June is dead. She was killed recently in performing the spectacular 65-ft. dive, that attracted thousands last year at the Pumpkin Show.

This high dive was the climax to a number of other exhibition dives of this company of June Sisters, who were the main free attraction at last year's show. Their tank, located on E. High-st., was only 6 feet deep and people waited for hours for the divers to appear.

In the afternoon Myrtle June made a number of difficult dives from the 20-foot board, and Sylvia climbed the ladder to a height of 65 feet and dived into the ridiculously small tank, made of canvas.

It was at night, however, that the crowds were spell-bound, for Sylvia, dressed in an overall suit, which was thoroughly saturated with kerosene and climbed the small ladder, up and up until she would have been lost in the darkness. She was not seen for an electric light at the top of the ladder. Here as she regained her breath while the band played, she would suddenly touch a lighted torch she carried, to her saturated suit. Then she would drop to the tank below, in a beautiful swan dive, with the flames roaring as she descended.

The people who watched her held their breath. They will never forget this free attraction.

It was in this high dive that Sylvia was paralyzed, as she struck the water off-balance, in Akron, O. She died later in a Chicago hospital.

WEST BRANCH, Ia., Aug. 21.—The orphan son of the village blacksmith, who left here 45 years ago with a knapsack on his back, is returning today, a Republican presidential nominee, to wander through the scenes of his childhood.

Back to the old swimming-hole with the mud bank slide, back to the barn where he used to hide his "leather stocking tales," barred from his Quaker household, back to the white frame house where he was born, back to the modest graves of his father and mother on the hillside—Herbert Hoover is to walk again as the most distinguished citizen this town ever produced instead of a quiet unprepossessing tothead lad of ten.

HUGE CROWDS TO VISIT CITY FOR BIG SALES DAY

Merchants List Hundreds of Bargains In This Issue of The Herald.

Dollar Day on Thursday in Circleville.

Those six words and their exclamation point tell the story of the crowds that will flock into this city on this Thursday to participate in another of the big successful sales inaugurated recently.

To list the bargains here would be practically impossible. Circleville merchants have tried to list part of them in their advertisements and you will find hundreds and hundreds of bargains in their advertisements in this issue of The Circleville Herald.

Don't miss reading a single advertisement—it will mean dollars in your own pocket.

In these days of close money, the value of a dollar is much below par on ordinary days. Only on Dollar Day is a dollar worth anything like its true value and on that occasion it is usually worth more than one hundred cents.

To the purchasers, Dollar Day has become an institution. They look forward to it as a day on which they can get the best of bargains for the least money. To the merchants, Dollar Day serves a different purpose. Fresh stocks of the summer season and early stocks of the fall season are offered at ridiculously low prices to clear shelves for new merchandise.

Dollar Day bargains run the gamut of usefulness. In the Dollar Day advertisements in this issue, one will find many necessary articles for Dad, Mother, the children and the old folk. Coming as it does at the mid-season between summer and fall, the bargains offered will be useful for many days and can be kept for use next year.

Every bargain offered is a good dollar's value and in the majority of cases is worth many times that price. Housewives, intent on economizing on their expense will revel in the opportunities which Dollar Day offers to save money on clothing, household articles, etc.

Not all the Dollar Day bargains are advertised in this issue. Practically every merchant participating in the Dollar Day event is preparing special groups of merchandise not included in his advertisement. The Dollar Day bids fair to outshine all preceding events of the kind as merchants have an abundance of bargains. Their surplus stock must be moved and that is where the country and city purchasers reap a rich harvest of bargains on Dollar Day.

Read the advertisements carefully. Don't overlook the small advertisements bargains along with the big fellows. Make out your list of merchandise together with the stores advertising the different articles. Your list will enable you to get prompt service from the clerical forces, which are being augmented in practically every store to care for the Dollar Day business.

Come early, snap agency and be happy.

Not all the Dollar Day bargains are advertised in this issue. Practically every merchant participating in the Dollar Day event is preparing special groups of merchandise not included in his advertisement. The Dollar Day bids fair to outshine all preceding events of the kind as merchants have an abundance of bargains. Their surplus stock must be moved and that is where the country and city purchasers reap a rich harvest of bargains on Dollar Day.

Read the advertisements carefully. Don't overlook the small advertisements bargains along with the big fellows. Make out your list of merchandise together with the stores advertising the different articles. Your list will enable you to get prompt service from the clerical forces, which are being augmented in practically every store to care for the Dollar Day business.

Come early, shop plenty and be happy.

WELL, DO THEY HAVE "TUMMY" ACHES, EH?

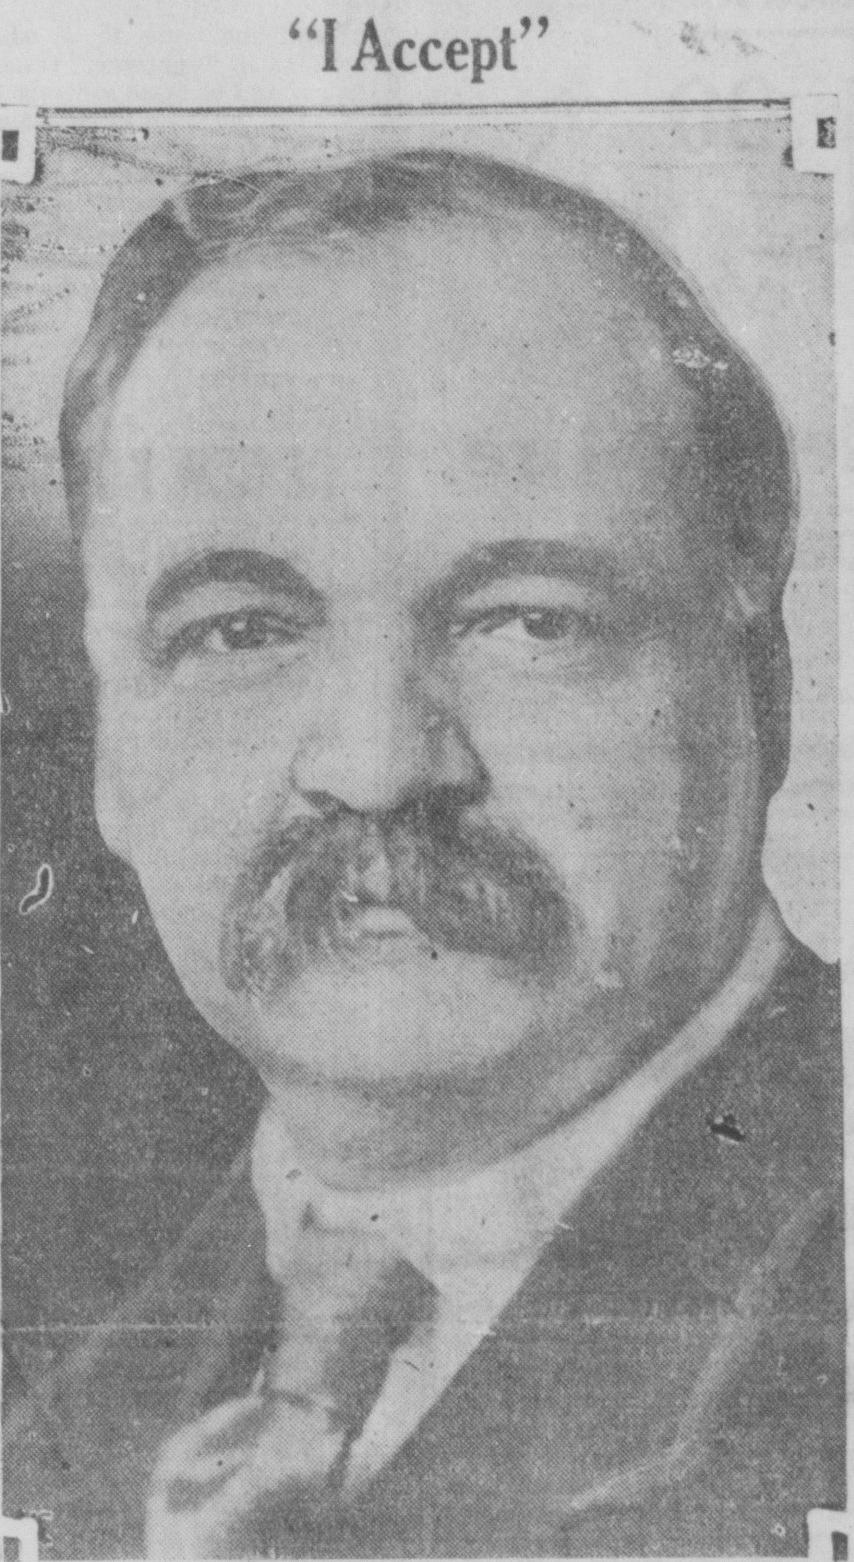

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Disciples of Isaac Walton in England are perturbed over the statement of a German judge that fish cannot suffer pain.

English fishermen disagree.

According to J. R. Norman, of the Natural History Museum, South Kensington, London, fish have highly organized sensory systems. Therefore they suffer pain when they are hooked.

Ohio Bankers Tour Farms In Pickaway-Co Tuesday Morning

In Drive To Discover Better Means of Aiding Farmer In His Problem.

Circleville and Pickaway-co. extended the hand of fellowship Tuesday to members of the Ohio Bankers' Association on their Annual Agricultural Tour through this county.

Seventy-five of the bankers and farmers ate luncheon at the American Hotel dining room at noon Tuesday after arriving at 9 a. m. at the Pickaway-co. Farm Bureau Home and making a three-hour tour throughout the county visiting farmers and attempting to arrive at their problems.

This is the third annual Agricultural Inspection Tour of the Ohio Bankers' Association and extends from Aug. 21 to 23, inclusive, through Pickaway, Ross, Highland, Clinton, Greene and Fayette counties.

Each year a group of the leading bankers and agriculturists of the state participate in the Annual Agricultural Tour of the bankers' association. These men, deeply interested in the welfare of Ohio agriculture, spend three days traveling in a large motor bus through a number of counties of the state, stopping at several successfully operated farms in each county and meeting intimately with local bankers and farmers.

The contacts of the local bankers and farmers and the discussions of leaders of both professions promotes a better understanding between the two groups.

At 9:45 a. m., Tuesday, the bankers visited the farm of J. C. Stevenson, one of Pickaway-co.'s "Master Farmers" in Jackson-co.

At 10:40 a. m., their schedule brought them to the Mary McKenzie poultry farm, southeast of Circleville.

The party of bankers left Circleville to commemorate that event.

Store Bandits Tie Watchman, Blow Open Safe

Noah Seamer, night watchman at the Union Clothing company in Columbus, who was bound by yeggs Monday morning in the store while the safe was blown and looted, is a former Circleville resident.

Seamer, who was held by the police and questioned regarding the robbery and then later released was employed by the Circleville Milling company, formerly the Heffner Milling company on E. Mill-st.

Seamer was badly shocked by the explosion which wrecked the Union safe and was removed to St. Francis hospital.

When police entered the store, following the blast, they found Seamer handcuffed to a post. The watchman told police, after he was released, that the robbers forced him to disclose the location of the safe and then tied him to the post.

The exact amount of money taken was not disclosed by the clothing company.

A very interesting letter from Mrs. Laura Graves of Douglass, Kan., the hostess' sister, was read and also the following poem:

"THE FRIENDS OF YOUTH"

Where are the comrades of long ago
The boys and girls that we used to know
Back there in the Old Home Town?
What have they gleaned from the passing years
Abundant laughter oh more of tears
A cheery smile or a frown?
Back in those fanciful childhood days
We dreamed our dreams and went our ways
To make all those dreams come true
Who have continued to journey's end
That rugged pathway, whose upward trend
Finds Fortune? I wish I knew.

NURSES know, and doctors have declared there's nothing quite like Bayer Aspirin for all sorts of aches and pains, but be sure it is genuine Bayer; that name must be on the package, and on every tablet. Bayer is genuine, and the word genuine—in red—is on every box. You can't go wrong if you will just look at the box:

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monocreticacidester of Salicylicacid

What have they learned of the better things
Of the joy that communion with Nature brings
Of the comfort that children give?
What do they know of the peace of mind
That come to those who are staunch and kind,
I wonder just how they live.
Swiftly the years have been fleeting by
Broad are the miles that between us lie
And far have we grown apart
Yet there is something devout and fine
That cherishes those old friends of mine
And cloisters them to my heart.

Overalls or Lingerie
Washed in the MAYTAG in 2 to 7 minutes!

SUCH remarkable washing speed was unthought of before the Maytag originated the Gyrofoam washing action and the heat-retaining cast-aluminum tub. Yet it washes the daintiest garments as carefully as if done by hand—washes by water action alone.

This effective but careful method washes the stubborn edge-dirt from collars and cuffs, the ground-in dirt from play clothes or overalls without hand-rubbing. An average washing takes about an hour.

The Maytag Roller Water Remover has a large, soft top roll and large, hard bottom roll. They exert even pressure on all parts of the garment, and spare the buttons.

You may use a Maytag for your next washing without cost or obligation. You will find that it brings washday happiness. You will discover why it won world leadership. If it doesn't sell itself, don't keep it.

AL SMITH TO CARRY SOUTH IN FALL VOTE

But Republican Threat Makes Some Missionary Work Needed, Leaders Say

By THOMAS L. STOKES

United Press Staff Correspondent. Copyright 1928 by United Press.

The consensus of opinion of important southern political leaders and editors of papers throughout the South as gathered by the United Press, is that Governor Alfred E. Smith will carry the Southern States, but that the Republican threat there makes some active missionary work necessary.

Here and there, it is admitted such as in Tennessee, there are indications of close contests. Leaders say, however, that accentuation of certain local issues, such as revelations tending to discredit some negro Republican leaders, will carry the Smith-Robinson ticket to victory in that section.

The anti-Smith element is both vociferous and active. When Sen-tis, that they were able to walk again, without cane or crutches, and that this same medicine restored health to men and women who had suffered with stomach and kidney troubles for years, that complete relief had come in cases of misery where health resorts, expensive treatments and medicine upon medicine had failed—indeed it seems impossible. Yet it is all true and the medicine that has done all these things is the new Konjola, which is being introduced, starting today, at the Mykrantz Pharmacy, Circleville.

Wherever introduced, this Konjola is vastly different and more effective in thousands of cases of ill-health than any previously known medicine. It is a remarkable liquid compound for the following well-known troubles:

RHEUMATISM: Especially severe cases, where pains are intense, muscles swollen, joints stiff and rigid. In the milder cases of this disease, Konjola relieves almost at once, and this medicine brings the same results to the neuritis victim that it produces for the rheumatic sufferers.

STOMACH, LIVER, KIDNEYS AND BOWEL TROUBLES: Nearly all forms of misery, that arise from these unhealthy organs have been so quickly relieved by Konjola that men and women sufferers everywhere were surprised. It is the action of this medicine on the organs of the inner-system that removes toxic poisons from the system and brings quick relief in so many cases. The secret of this Konjola is the way it acts on the important functional organs of the body, namely, the stomach, liver, kidneys, and bowels. So many diseases and long standing disorders of these organs were so completely conquered and entirely banished by this new compound that thousands of people in larger cities were able to give up taking medicine for time to come.

After the great accomplishments and wonderful work of Konjola in other sections, it is declared that this medicine is what hundreds of sufferers in Circleville and vicinity have long needed to actually reach their cases, and preparations are being made to introduce Konjola for the first time at the Mykrantz Pharmacy where this medicine will be sold and explained to the public daily.—Adv.

ator George Moses of New Hampshire, vice-chairman of the Republican advisory committee and eastern director, gave out an interview recently, saying he held little hope of breaking the solid South, he received by return mail a number of loud protests from anti-Smith voters.

"Chastened," he said, by these protests he promptly announced a vigorous campaign in the South.

Democrats will carry on their work through state and local leaders who know the situation. How the Republican threat impresses them is seen in the active orders which are going out to the local leaders to get busy. There will be a drive to get out many voters who hitherto have not bothered much about going to the polls, in the general election because they believed it unnecessary. Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, who is a member of the national advisory committee, will have general charge of this campaign to get out the stay-at-home vote.

Reports gathered by the United Press show the type of campaign that Southern leaders are going to make to keep the South solidly behind the Democratic nominee. They are going to emphasize these issues:

1. White domination in the South.

2. Alleged sale of office by Republican negroes, resulting in indictments in Mississippi.

3. "Republican corruption," such as the Teapot Dome oil case.

And the following two expressions sum up the type of appeal that will be made to Southern voters:

"I shall support the Democratic nominees because I am a Democrat and a white man," said former Senator John Sharp Williams of Mississippi.

"If the Democratic party be now overthrown, then the overthrow of white supremacy will inevitably follow," said former Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia.

Herbert Hoover's order as secretary of commerce distributing a few negro workers among the white personnel in the census bureau at Washington after he had received a protest against "segregation," which is forbidden in government departments, has been used already and will be used more in the campaign in the South.

A significant and enlightening view of the situation was given the United Press by Harry M. Ayers, editor of the Anniston, Ala., Star, and a political leader in Alabama.

"It is a well known fact in Alabama that the writer as a member of the platform committee of the convention at Houston and publisher of the Anniston Star, did everything in his power to prevent the nomination of Governor Smith.

"However, the Star believes that the interests of this section of the country will be best served by a change in party rule and accordingly will support Governor Smith in spite of our difference with him on the question of prohibition.

"But for Mr. Hoover's injection of the racial issue in the campaign, and but for the anti-lynch law plank in the Republican platform, it is believed that Mr. Hoover could secure a much larger vote in the South than he seems assured of at the present time. Undoubtedly there will be some defection from the Democratic party ranks on account of Smith's prohibition views and as a consequence of religious prejudice.

"However, it is not believed that this will be sufficient to affect the electoral vote and that the South will continue solid in so far as the Democratic party is concerned. Recent revelations of corruption within the Republican party in Southern states will contribute materially to that end."

Josephus Daniels of North Carolina, former secretary of the navy and a leader of the "dry" fight in the Houston convention, says he believes the Southern Democrats will mobilize to elect dry members to congress and will vote for Smith because his record as governor of New York gives promise of an efficient administration of national affairs.

"I think the well-posted Southern people are getting very much disgusted and weary beyond fatigue of the continued reiteration of the falsehood promulgated by people in the cities that the opposition to Governor Smith's nomination in the South was based upon prejudice," Daniels told the United Press.

"Nearly all of it was, and is based upon his part in securing the repeal of the Mullen-Gage enforcement act and his attitude against prohibition. This was accentuated by his telegram to the Houston convention and by the election of Raskob as national chairman, who calls prohibition 'damnable.'

"I do not think anybody can say with accuracy what the South will do in this campaign. Very many Democrats are not inclined to vote for Mr. Smith. Comparatively few of them will vote for Hoover because of his connection with the administration which was the crookedest in the history of the country and he never opened his mouth against the conspiracy or corruption and because if he ever had an opinion about prohibition and its enforcement nobody ever knew it until he became a candidate for the presidency. It will be hard to induce prohibitionists to be enthusiastic for a man who has shown no interest in a cause that is very dear to them.

"There are two moral issues in this campaign. One is whether the party is guilty of the crimes of Teapot Dome and other naval oil reserves, corrupting the ballot, buying senatorial togs and stealing what belonged to the veterans and allies shall be forgiven their offenses.

"And the other is the prohibition question. I believe that the consciences of most of the dry Democrats in the South in the dilemma that confronts them will not permit them to vote for Hoover because to do so would be to condone the policy of favoritism and graft, one or both of which has characterized both the Harding and Coolidge administrations; nor to approve Smith's stand on prohibition.

"The attitude of most dry Democrats, I think, is that they will mobilize themselves to insure the election of dry Democrats to congress so that if Smith should be elected any moist recommendation he may make will have no chance of passing congress; and they will vote for him because his record as governor of New York gives promise of an efficient administration of national affairs."

Touching on the negro issue, The Miami Herald said recently: "The white people of the South who resent anything that savors of negro supremacy, will speedily take notice that many of those who control federal offices in the South are negroes and that they have used their positions to graft upon those who receive federal offices."

The negro population in the South is large. In South Carolina, estimates for 1927 show nearly as many negroes as white people, 893,200 as compared with 851,800, while the actual census of 1920 shows more negroes than white people living in that state, and the same is true of Mississippi. The ratios are high also in Georgia and Alabama. The total estimated white population in the 11 Southern States in 1927 was 18,491,200, as compared with 7,418,800 negroes.

AL SMITH TO CARRY SOUTH IN FALL VOTE

But Republican Threat Makes Some Missionary Work Needed, Leaders Say

By THOMAS L. STOKES

United Press Staff Correspondent. Copyright 1928 by United Press. The consensus of opinion of important southern political leaders and editors of papers throughout the South as gathered by the United Press, is that Governor Alfred E. Smith will carry the Southern States, but that the Republican threat there makes some active missionary work necessary.

Here and there, it is admitted such as in Tennessee, there are indications of close contests. Leaders say, however, that accentuation of certain local issues, such as revelations tending to discredit some negro Republican leaders, will carry the Smith-Robinson ticket to victory in that section. The anti-Smith element is both vociferous and active. When Sen-

WITH SUCH TRADITION-CONFIDENCE? 'T BE DESERVED

The General Superintendent's Duty Shall Be—

... to pass over the entire line of railroad in a hand car at least once every month ... and report in writing to the President, the condition of the roadway, bridges, culverts, trestle-work, depots, machine shops, machinery, motive power and rolling stock."

WHAT WAS THE JOB OF THE General
Superintendent, as outlined in the Old
Constitution of the Virginia & Tennessee
Railroad in 1861.

TO-DAY, with 5,000 miles of track, no one man could perform such an impossible task. Times have truly changed. But, through the years which have seen three-quarters of a century of railroad development, one policy has remained steadfast. The NOR-FOLK and WESTERN RAILWAY, of which the Virginia & Tennessee is now a part, always has, and always will continue to embody the spirit of safety and precaution—that the public's confidence—so highly prized—may continue to be deserved.

The Norfolk and Western Railway has recently been awarded the coveted
E. H. Harriman Memorial Gold Medal by the American Museum of Safety for "the utmost progress in accident prevention" during 1926.
Although more than twenty-six million persons—nearly a fourth of the population of the United States—traveled more than a billion and a quarter miles over the Norfolk and Western from 1921 to 1926, not a single passenger was killed in a train accident.

Furthermore, in 1926, not a single passenger was injured in a train accident on this "safe railroad."

BIBLE THOUGHT

A VIRTUOUS WOMAN.—Who can find a virtuous woman? for her price is far above rubies. The heart of her husband doth safely trust in her.—Prov. 31: 10 and 11.

PRAYER.—For the nobility and integrity of our womanhood, we thank Thee, Lord.

THE VACATION HABIT

The custom of taking a summer vacation has become a quite general one, although many people do not get one even yet. The farmers are putting in their heaviest licks about now. Millions of hard-working people feel it necessary to work while there is work, as they may be idle at times owing to dull business, so they may get more vacation than they need. And there are millions of folks who can never see enough money ahead so they can afford to go on any wanderings.

But as the American people the number who go off on trips gradually grow more prosperous, and outings constantly increase. Many of the older people regard such journeyings as wasteful and extravagant. But times have changed now, and people have in intense desire to see the country.

A reasonable amount of money spent on vacation trips is never wasted. People get ideas from such travels. And they work better after getting back from such a rest. Even if they return tired physically, yet they are not tired in the same way as when they went off. The things that wore on their nerves have been absent, and they have had a chance to recover from the grind of their daily toil.

But people should exercise some judgment on these rest periods. The indoor workers who attempt to climb a high mountain or walk 20 miles the first day of their outing, are likely to pay quite a price for the unaccustomed effort. Those who keep going every minute of the time may return more exhausted than when they went away.

The best part of a vacation is the rest from toil. When a hard working person spends many hours in quiet loafing, the time is not wasted. Through those idle hours, new energy is accumulated that can be drawn upon later.

A NEW LABOR IDEA

A new cure for unemployment is suggested by Ethelbert Stewart chief of the statistics division of the Department of Labor.

He proposes that industry in the United States should adopt the five-day week within a few years following this, perhaps much later with the six-hour day. Both of these changes, he says, should be accomplished by an actual increase in wage rates.

A decade ago such a suggestion would have been hooted from one end of the country to the other. Now, while it probably won't get adopted over night, it at least will get a hearing. We have learned in recent years that more things are possible in American industry than we used to imagine.

No one can say, of course, just what will happen in the next decade or so. But at any rate, it can be said that the five-day week and the six-hour day are at least possibilities now. They are no longer ultra-radical Utopian dreams.

FASCIST EDUCATION

Fascist Italy has issued a new order to Italian Fascists who live in foreign countries such as the United States. It calls on these Italians to educate their children in Fascist schools rather than in the schools of the country of their adoption, and demands that all of them wear the Fascist badge at all times, because "the badge is the symbol of Italianity for the wearer."

This really doesn't mean very much of anything. Yet Americans who favor restrictive immigration laws ought to send a vote of thanks to the Fascist official who issued this order.

Ineffective as it doubtless will prove, it is certain to arouse a good deal of resentment in this country. It will simply serve to strengthen the hands of the people who want to see the entrance of southern Europeans in the United States cut down to an irreducible minimum.

Nearly 397,800 tons of the copper consumed in this country last year was for electrical applications.

Love's Ecstasy

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

ALEDA RAY, pretty country girl, and Gary Chester, young engineer, are in love. Aleda, working as a stenographer in New York, is living with Marise de Rense, whose young, sophisticated sister, Goldie, and Clive Mortimer, ne'er-do-well Englishman, are secretly engaged in a blackmailing scheme. They receive a "commission" to arrange a party for Smithson, wealthy rounder. Aleda, gloriously happy, returns before midnight with Gary. They had been to dinner in the country.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

"THE sly beast! The two-faced cat! She's double-crossed me! I hate her!" Goldie de Rense told herself excitedly when, at 11 p. m., she opened the front door of the house on West Fortieth Street at Aleda's ring and found Aleda with the handsome, gentlemanly young man who had twice come to the night club, and whom Goldie—who didn't even know his name—had so yearningly to see again.

Who was he? An acquaintance of the Countess Dellamancas—she knew that.

But how on earth had Aleda grabbed him—Aleda whom Goldie had hitherto considered so mouse-like and so negligible?

"He's been back at the Harvest Club, and she's made up to him on the sly, with never a word to me!" Goldie could have sworn at Aleda at this moment of fury and jealousy and suspicion.

"I aroused her interest! I brought two and two together—watched and waited for him—and now she's got him for herself!"

Saving him standing there on the top doorstep of her home so utterly absorbed in gazing at Aleda that he didn't even give one glance in her direction, it did seem as though Aleda had fascinated him! Even when Aleda, in her breathless, musical young voice, said hastily, by way of introduction, "This is my friend, Miss de Rense, whom I'm staying with," he merely gave the vaguest bow without one sign of recognition toward the red-haired damsel in the doorway, and went right on talking to the other girl!

This was too much. After the first shock had passed, but still furiously resentful, Goldie, leaving the door half open, retired a step or two into the semi-dark lobby and surveyed the couple through the crack!

"I can never thank you enough for coming!" the handsome young man (on whose interest Goldie considered she had a special option) was saying to Aleda.

"It's been simply wonderful!" affirmed the girl.

"Has it, indeed?" mimicked

Goldie, watching, and extremely spiteful. That look in the eyes—so deferential, yet so full of genuine ardor—of which Aleda at this moment was the recipient, had certainly never been turned on her by any man!

"It's been the happiest evening of my life!" averred the young fellow, with a boyish emphasis. He held Aleda's hand in his, as though reluctant to part with it, or her! "I can only tear myself away if you promise—promise that very soon there will be a repetition. Let's make it a bargain. What do you say?"

She laughed. That little laugh of hers was low and musical. It was one of Aleda's greatest charms, did she but know.

To Gary Chester it was utterly alluring. He had the greatest difficulty at that moment to keep himself from taking her in his arms!

To jealous Goldie, the Broadway "game," watching through the crack of the door, the spell that he was under was quite obvious. Goldie, herself a creature of impulse but at the same time shrewd and calculating, had a certain intuition about men—and life.

"If you want to find me, you can call me, either here or at the office," said Aleda gently.

"And if you want me—please give me a ring at any time—I'd be immensely pleased and flattered—messages will always get me at the Yale Club!"

Goldie stepped back into the darkened living-room as Aleda—having bid her cavalier good-night—came through the door and into the hall.

"Goldie! Hi, there! Where are you?" There was a gay lilt in Aleda's voice.

With a hop, step and jump the red-haired damsel was over by the windows, pretending to be busy with the fastenings.

"I'm here—shutting up shop. Come on in and relate your dizzy adventure! The simple country maid's stepped forth."

"Oh, Goldie, he's so—charming! He took me in his car out on Long Island. It's beautiful out there. We had dinner in the sweetest little restaurant!"

FARMERS ARE TO PAY LESS AFTER FALL ON FREIGHT

When It Comes To Fertilizer Shipments, Farm Bureau Here Learns.

Farmers of this country will pay less freight on their fertilizer after Oct. 5, as a result of a decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission rendered recently, says H. J. Briggs of the Pickaway County Farm Bureau. The rate reduction varies with the distance which the fertilizer is shipped, ranging from 90 cents to $1.20, with an average over Ohio of a little more than a dollar, he reports.

The Commission's order to lower freight rates on fertilizer resulted from a complaint entered by the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation more than four years ago. Mr. Briggs says. It has been the subject of several public hearings, and was finally combined with complaints of other state farm bureaus and of fertilizer manufacturers which were made later.

Farmers of this section have been paying a higher freight rate on fertilizer than farmers of the South and West for a number of years, Mr. Briggs reports. It was this difference in rates that was used as the chief argument in favor of the reduction, coupled with the fact that increased use of fertilizer resulting from the

LITTLE JIMMIE

Little Jimmie's gone away,
Went to sleep just yesterday;
And the room where once he played
With its rocking horse that neighed,
And its soldier boys of blue
Standing staunch and stern and true,
True, ah! like its master, who
Always told them what to do—
Silent guardians all are these
Of the one they tried to please.

Little Jimmie's gone away,
Left me here alone to stay
With his train of cars and drum,
And the top that doesn't hum
Because the secret of its spin,
How to hold the cord just so
And just when to "let 'er go!"
Oh, why did not I listen when
He explained it to me then!

Little Jimmie's gone away—
Here his jack-knife rusted lay,
And his acorn pipe or two
That he loved to whittle through,
Like the squirrel he loved so well,
And the chip-munk in the dell:
"Little Jimmie"—thus they sing—
"Come to us once more and bring
Acorns in this swinging tree,
Like those days that used to be."

Little Jimmie's gone away—
Visions of that long, sad day
Make the birds' song even drear,
Chill the heart with sudden fear
That you hadn't been so good
To the lad who loved the wood
And the streams and singing rills
That twined in between the hills—
Jimmie, guardians all are these
Of you, the lad they sought to please

Goldie, watching, and extremely spiteful. That look in the eyes—so deferential, yet so full of genuine ardor—of which Alela at this moment was, the recipient, had certainly never been turned on her by any man!

"It's been the happiest evening of my life!" averred the young fellow, with a boyish emphasis. He held Alela's hand in his, as though reluctant to part with it, though reluctant to part with it—away if you promise—promise that very soon there will be a repetition. Let's make it a bargain. What do you say?"

She laughed. That little laugh of hers was low and musical. It was one of Alela's greatest charms, did she but know.

To Gary Chester it was utterly alluring. He had the greatest difficulty at that moment to keep himself from taking her in his arms!

To jealous Goldie, the Broadway "ramine," watching through the crack of the door, the spell that he was under was quite obvious. Goldie herself a creature of impulse but at the same time shrewd and calculating, had a certain intuition about men—and life.

"If you want to find me you can call me, either here or at the office," said Alela gently.

"And if you want me—please give me a ring at any time—I'd be immensely pleased and flattered—messages will always get me at the Yale Club."

Goldie stepped back into the darkened living-room as Alela—having bid her cavalier good-night—came through the door and into the hall.

"Goldie! Hi, there! Where are you?" There was a gay lilt in Alela's voice.

With a hop, step and jump the red-haired damsel was over by the windows, pretending to be busy with the fastenings.

"I'm here—shutting up shop. Come on in and relate your dizzy adventure! The simple country maid's stepped forth."

"Oh, Goldie, he's so charming! He took me in his car out on Long Island. It's beautiful out there. We had dinner in the sweetest little restaurant."

(Thought Goldie: I don't believe she guesses he was the man I was raving about!

"That so?" Her voice was cool and even. The darkness of the living room hid her face. "Quite an Adonis, huh? I've got to hand it to you! What's the beloved one's name, might I ask?"

"He's—just a friend! His name is Gary Chester. He's very clever. Works for my boss, a famous engineer."

A scheme—a daring scheme, born of revenge and jealousy, plus the queer attraction the young fellow had exercised unwittingly on Goldie—rapidly evolved in her shrewd mind.

"Want to do a little favor for me, dear?" She came out of the darkness towards Alela. The latter saw that Goldie was in evening dress. "I need a fifth girl for tonight for an awfully cheap party that a friend of mine is giving. One of the guests dropped out and I can't stir up a substitute at this late hour. You'll come, won't you, Alela?"

"Oh, I couldn't." The girl drew back. Such a magic evening with Gary Chester—she wanted to go straight to bed—to be alone and dream about the enchanted hours.

"Say 'yes!' I'm in a hole!" coaxed Goldie.

"No, no. You ask Marise. She'll go instead."

With swift acumen Goldie went to the phone and called her sister, whom she knew would be quite unable to leave the Harvest Moon. She spoke in muffled tones into the instrument. Alela could not hear what Goldie said. And then the latter beckoned to her. "Marise can't get away. She wants to speak to you."

Alela took the receiver, heard Marise imploring her to accompany Goldie as a chaperone!

"I hate these parties, but Goldie's set on going! I've so much confidence in you, Alela, my mind will be relieved if I know you're there! You go with Goldie to this party and keep a sharp watch on her and bring her back early! Do this, dear, for my sake!"

What could Alela do, but reluctantly acquiesce?

And while she was slipping on a simple little frock, upstairs, Goldie, on a battered old typewriter belonging to one of the other "roomers," wrote the following note:

"Gary, old dear, come on and join us at a party on the roof of 6072 Madison Avenue. I would just love to have you come. Love from Alela."

She addressed an envelope, put the message in it, telephoned for a messenger, and when he came, said briefly: "Take this to Mr. Gary Chester at the Yale Club."

The RAMBLER

A POEM FOR TODAY
By NORMAN W. RALSTON

LITTLE JIMMIE

Little Jimmie's gone away,
Went to sleep just yesterday;
And the room where once he played
With its rocking horse that neighed,
And its soldier boys of blue
Standing staunch and stern and true,
True, ah! like its master, who
Always told them what to do—
Silent guardians all are these
Of the one they tried to please.

Little Jimmie's gone away,
Left me here alone to stay
With his train of cars and drum,
And the top that doesn't hum
Because the little hand of him
Knew the secret of its spin,
How to hold the cord just so
And just when to "let 'er go!"
Oh, why did not I listen when
He explained it to me then!

Little Jimmie's gone away—
Here his jack-knife rusted lay.
And his acorn pipe or two
That he loved to whittle through,
Like the squirrel he loved so well,
And the chip-munk in the dell:
"Little Jimmie"—thus they sing—

"Come to us once more and bring
Acorns in this swinging tree,
Like those days that used to be."

Little Jimmie's gone away—
Visions of that long, sad day
Make the birds' song even drear,
Chill the heart with sudden fear
That you hadn't been so good
To the lad who loved the wood
And the streams and singing rills

That twined in between the hills—
Jimmie, guardians all are these
Of you, the lad they sought to please

Helen Wills Starts Quest Of Fifth Net Cup

FIRST MATCH IS ON TODAY IN BIG MEET

Meets Mrs. J. Saunders Taylor in 41st Annual Women's Tournament.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
N. E. Staff Correspondent
FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 21—Helen Wills began the quest of her fifth national tennis singles championship today, playing her first match in the second round of the 41st annual women's tournament against Mrs. J. Saunders Taylor, New York.

They both drew byes in the first round yesterday, which saw 28 of the field of 60 eliminated. There were no upsets in the first round, all the seeded players and favorites winning in drab fashion.

Miss Wills is a 10 to 1 favorite to retain her title. There is not a player in sight to even extend the California girl, who has not lost a set in any match this season. Three games are the most Miss Wills has lost in any one set.

Miss Helen Jacobs, serious-faced Santa Monica, Cal., girl, today was regarded as the outstanding player in the lower half of the draw, and she is likely to meet Miss Wills in the final.

One of the feature matches on today's program had Majorie Gladman, Palo Alto, Cal., National Girls' champion, and Edith Cross, San Francisco, Pacific coast champion, paired. They both won their first round matches in impressive fashion.

Mrs. Molla Mallory, eight times national champion, who has trained hard for this test since her disastrous overseas campaign, had Carolyn Swartz, Berkeley, Cal., for her opponent in the second round. Playing bare-legged yesterday, Mrs. Mallory defeated Gene Burritt, young Toronto girl, 6-0, 6-2, and demonstrated that she has not lost all of her old-time speed and power.

Another important match in the second round had Marjorie Morrill, Dedham, Mass., seeded No. 6, and Mrs. J. D. Corbiere, Boston, as opponents.

Opening round matches in the doubles were also on today's program.

Rogers Hornsby (376) doubles in three trips.

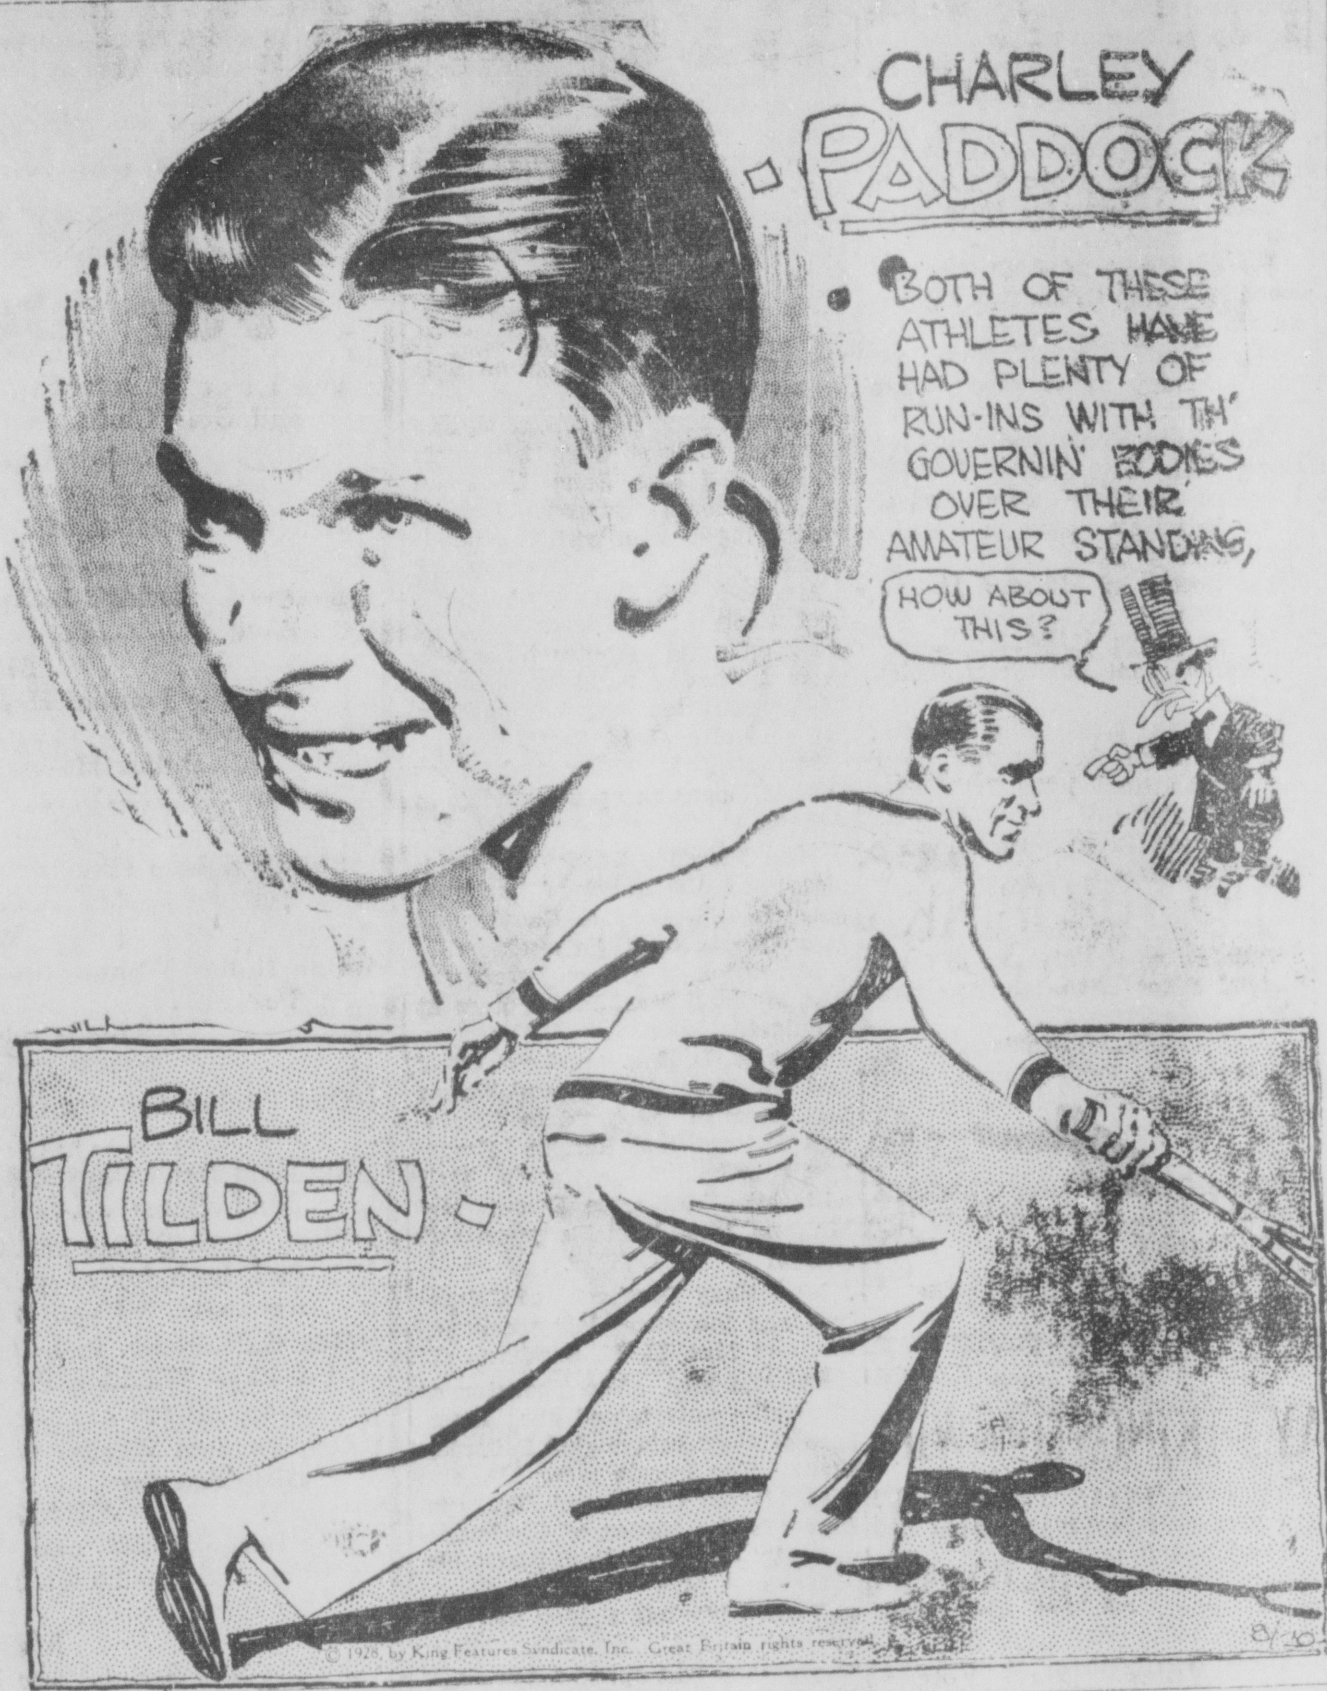

Paul Waner (368) tripled and singled in five trips.

Freddy Lindstrom (354) singled twice in five trips.

Al Simmons (368) failed to hit in four trips.

Frankie Frisch (304) failed to hit in four trips.

Babe Ruth (332); Lou Gehrig (375) and Harry Heilmann (301) did not play.

Baseball

Yesterday's Hero:—Jimmy Wilson, St. Louis catcher, whose single in the ninth with the bases full and the score tied, enabled the St. Louis Cardinals to defeat Brooklyn 2 to 1.

New York held to its slender lead in the national race with a 5 to 3 victory over Cincinnati. The Reds scored two runs in the first inning but were unable to hold the determined leaders. The Reds made 10 hits off Joe Genewich but he kept them comfortably scattered.

Hopes of the Pittsburgh Pirates for a berth in the first division were at least temporarily checked by the Boston Braves who soundly trounced them 14 to 11. The Pirates made 19 hits to 17 for Boston but were unable to make them as effective.

Four Cub pitchers were unable to halt the tail end Philadelphia club at Chicago and Joe McCarthy's crew lost 11 to 6.

Charley Grimm, Chicago first baseman, was injured when he ran into the right field boxes. He will be out about four days.

Howard Ehmke held the St. Louis Browns scoreless for six innings and then weakened, allowing the Browns to whip Philadelphia's Athletics, 9 to 2. Ogden allowed the A's only four hits.

The Chicago White Sox took the final of their three game series from Boston, 6 to 4. Red Faber, veteran splitter, allowed the Red Sox only six hits but they bunched three of these with a walk in the third to score their entire quota. The White Sox got 12 safe blows.

BOXING

PHILADELPHIA—Pete Latzo, Scranton, Pa. defeated Mat Aggie Philadelphia; 10; 172 1-2-175. Rene Devos, Belgium, defeated Babe McGargy, Oklahoma; 8; 160. Jack Gross knocked out Sully Montgomery, former Center college football star; 1; 208-204.

TROY, N. Y.—Al Delgado, New York, welterweight, knocked out Canastota Bob; 6. Mickey Cangro Staten Island, defeated Joe Trippie, Rochester; 10. Dorey Shimmers, Syracuse, drew with Red Herring, Utica; 10.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Billy Vidaback, Bayonne, N. J., lost a 10-round decision to Osk Till, Buffalo. Till dropped Vidaback for the count of nine in the second round. Till weighed 164; Vidaback, 182.

GIANTS HANG ON TO NARROW LEAD

CINCINNATI, Aug. 21—New York's 5 to 3 victory over the Reds here yesterday enabled the Giants to cling to the narrow margin they hold over the St. Louis Cardinals. St. Louis refused to drop back, taking a 2 to 0 decision from Brooklyn. The Cards, in games won and lost, are half game ahead but the Giants hold the lead in percentage by .002 points.

The standings:
New York 67 45 .609
St. Louis 71 46 .607

HERE'S ANOTHER FIGHTER QUITTING

NEW YORK, Aug. 21—Another boxing title was vacant today through the voluntary resignation of Bud Haylor, Terre Haute, Ind., from the bantamweight title of the National Boxing Association. Taylor's manager, Eddie Long, telegraphed J. J. McMahon, match-maker of Madison Square Garden, saying that henceforth the blond boxer from Indiana would fight in the 126 pound division and would seek a championship bout with Tony Canzonieri, the featherweight champion.

TO GREET SOCCER TEAM

NEW YORK, Aug. 21—Baron Giacomo Di Martino, Italian ambassador, will greet members of the Brescia Soccer team of Italy, at the Ambassador hotel here today. The Italian team is playing a series of games with American teams.

Just after New York had finished taking four straight from the Pittsburgh Pirates last Fall in the World Series, type-writers all over the nation began clicking out tales that dubbed the Yankees the greatest ball team of our time.

Literary bouquets showered at the feet of Babe Ruth and Miller Huggins and all members of the team came in for a share of the praise. But it was the Babe who reaped the lion's share of the glory.

It probably will be that way so long as Ruth patrols right field and keeps slamming his homers. His remarkable baseball feats are overshadowing some of the greatest baseball players who ever stepped on the diamond.

Bob Meusel is a star and has been for years, but because his lustre is a trifle less than that of Ruth, he gets scant attention when baseball fans gather to win and lose pennants in the Hot Stove League.

Meusel is a star. Meusel has one of the most accurate and powerful throwing arms in the game, he covers the outfield like a blanket and can hit with the best of them. On any other team except the Yankees, he would be the idol of the baseball public.

Then there is the case of Lou Gehrig, the slugging first baseman, who stepped from the Columbia University diamond to Yankee Stadium and has been there ever since. Gehrig hit a bit above his head last year and for a time threatened Ruth's supremacy as King of Clout. He had his flurry of nation-wide publicity then and got a fat contract for this year. But now that Lou has settled down to his normal pace, Ruth again reigns supreme.

His injuries this year have not prevented Tony Lazzeri from being a bulwark for the Yankees on both defense and attack. The second baseman is hitting at a .360 clip and soon will be fielding his position with all the old wizardry. Lazzeri is the spark plug of the Yankee infield; he provides the dash and fire that makes it one of the strongest inner defenses in the American League.

GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—Weak Liverpool quotations sent wheat sharply lower on the board of trade today. Corn was irregular under conflicting influences. Oats lost a fraction.

Wheat opened 5-8 to 1 3-8c off, corn ranged from 1-8c down to 1-8c up and oats were off 1-8c. Provisions were slightly higher.

Week end weather over the wheat belt favored harvesting in the northwest and Canada. Traders here were predicting that today's visible supply report would show a large increase in wheat. Liverpool was much weaker than expected today.

Tightness in September corn is hovering over the market and threatening to influence trade as the light July delivery did earlier in the year.

Iowa had more rain yesterday with hail in some sections. Other parts of the belt reported clear warm weather. Oats had been an indifferent market. Prices last week touched new lows on four consecutive days with little rallying power shown.

OHIO'S CROP OF WHEAT FOR YEAR SLIGHTLY LOWER

Will Be 13 Per Cent Less Than It Was Over U. S. Year Ago.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 21 — Ohio's 1929 wheat acreage will be approximately 13 per cent less than it was this year as compared with an estimated 2.1 per cent decrease for the United States, according to estimates received by the United States department of agriculture.

The estimated acreage for next year is 2,149,000 this year's acreage was 2,471,000. Aug. 1, intentions this year were below the intentions reported in 1927, especially in the corn belt states and in Oklahoma and Texas, with the exception of the Atlantic Coast states which had the intended acreage, according to a department statement.

Montana and other western states are expected to have increased acreage. In California, the acreage is still dependent on the fall rains.

The report of the agriculture department, it was pointed out, was not a forecast of the acreage that will be planted but merely a statement of farmers' intentions as of August 1. In past years, the actual acreage planted has been less than acreage intended. Price and weather conditions may effect a larger or smaller acreage shown by present intentions.

Ohio's rye acreage will be 65,000, it was estimated. This figure is substantially more than last fall's acreage of 44,000.

QUESTION SUSPECT

CLEVELAND, Aug. 21 —Police today are questioning a new suspect in connection with the murder of Katherine Madden, Shaker Heights trained nurse, who was beaten to death March 30, 1927.

The man is believed to be the slugging who terrorized the east and Shaker Boulevard district last night when he attacked two young women with a hammer.

about it? Mrs. Curran, his school teacher, has baked a cake. A big circus tent has been hired and set up for him to deliver tonight his speech to the farmers about his farm relief program. White-whiskered old citizens, who "knew him when," are busy pointing out to strangers the spot where he conducted his experiment on the explosive qualities of tar and nearly burned the town.

The big maple tree where the mother owl nearly scratched his eyes out is a shrine where groups of people stand around and stare as if they could see the hero of the legend in action.

Flags and pictures fly from every spot on Main street where a tack could be lodged. The town band has been practicing studiously. And the one magnetic word on every lip is: "Hoover."

It was quite different 45 years ago. There were no bands the time he got the tanning for trying to hit a rabbit on Sunday. There were no flags or pictures to attend his three mile daily trudge to the Quaker school. The winters were hard and the food was coarse.

But Hoover has said that it was the ideal childhood he wished every American boy might have and he prepared to relive the day in reminiscences.

The special train bearing him across the continent is to arrive here at 7:30 a. m., central time. With Mrs. Hoover, and their two sons, Herbert, Jr., and Allan, the nominee breakfasted in the house where he was born. He wants to spend the morning meeting relatives and the afternoon prowling around, unmolested, if possible.

His farm speech tonight is to be one of the biggest of his campaign. He worked it out carefully before he left Palo Alto, hoping to embody in it a clear amplification of his three-fold farm plan laid down in his acceptance speech.

SHARP PAINS GIVE SIGNALS FOR REST

One Form of Heart Disease, Known as Pericarditis, Is Rarely Fatal, but It Requires Skilled Medical Attention.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

IN the chest are vital organs. Here are located the lungs and heart. The lungs are protected by a covering of tissue which gives form and security to these delicate organs.

The heart is suspended in a fluid-filled sac, known as the "pericardium." Just as all other parts of the body are liable to become congested and inflamed, so may the "pericarditis."

Primary pericarditis is rare. What I mean is that it is unusual to have an inflammation of the heart sac without trouble which started somewhere else in the body. The most common ailment to produce it is rheumatic fever.

Tonsillitis, tuberculosis, scarlet fever, measles, pneumonia, diphtheria and typhoid may be followed by this particular form of heart disturbance. But, as I have said, the worst enemy of the pericardium is rheumatic fever. That disease seems to enjoy striking at the heart.

Just what the symptoms will be depend on the form the pericarditis takes. If it produces an effusion—that is, if a lot of fluid is thrown out, filling the heart sac and crowding the heart—then it becomes difficult to breathe. A sensation of pressure and suffocation is produced. There is apt to be stabbing and severe.

There may be considerable fever. Cough, restlessness, rapid pulse and sometimes delirium are other symptoms.

Fortunately, pericarditis is rarely fatal. The common type, that which follows rheumatic fever, is particularly favorable as to outcome.

In the treatment, more important than all the other things combined, is the absolute quiet which must be had. The first indication is to keep the heart down to the slowest possible action. To accomplish this there must be physical rest and mental rest. Noises, odors, jarring—everything which can possibly excite in the heart must be suppressed.

When a child is the victim, the pain and distress may be relieved by applying an ice pack over the chest. Anything which is helpful in allaying excitement is beneficial because it aids in keeping the heart action down.

The after care is important. Sunlight, fresh air and massage will help a lot. Your doctor will prescribe the remedies.

Read This Amazing Trade-in Offer

HERE is a remarkable offer --- unlike any ever made you before. Don't confuse it with the ordinary offer. It is totally different as you will see.

The Miller Rubber Company has just announced a remarkable new-type tire of giant strength. Not just new in looks and tread---but new in every step of its manufacture.

It's a higher priced tire than any we have handled --- and it's worth every cent that will be asked for it.

Introduce It Quickly, said Miller

We have been told by The Miller Rubber Company to make this remarkable offer for the purpose of getting this new tire into action quickly on a number of cars. We have been told to offer you the New Miller Deluxe Balloons---in exchange for your old tires---and to make you a very liberal allowance. No matter what condition your tires are in --- this offer applies to you --- if you act promptly.

Facts About This New-Type Tire

The New Miller Deluxe Balloon is a 6-ply tire of course, and that's not all. The distinctive, new, scientifically designed tread is extra thick. Never have you seen a tire with the non-skid quality this one has. And the puncture hazard is practically eliminated. It is built of the finest rubber and cotton in the world. It is larger--more massive. It is a tire that will stand abuse--overloading--road shocks--rough going--and still live up to its promise of thousands of extra miles.

SHARP PAINS GIVE SIGNALS FOR REST

One Form of Heart Disease, Known as Pericarditis, Is Rarely Fatal, but It Requires Skilled Medical Attention.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

IN the chest are vital organs. Here are located the lungs and heart. The lungs are protected by a covering of tissue which gives form and security to these delicate organs.

The heart is suspended in a fluid-filled sac, known as the "pericardium." Just as all other parts of the body are liable to become congested and inflamed, so may the "pericarditis."

Primary pericarditis is rare. What I mean is that it is unusual to have an inflammation of the heart sac without trouble which started somewhere else in the body. The most common ailment to produce it is rheumatic fever.

Tonsillitis, tuberculosis, scarlet fever, measles, pneumonia, diphtheria and typhoid may be followed by this particular form of heart disturbance. But, as I have said, the worst enemy of the pericardium is rheumatic fever. That disease seems to enjoy striking at the heart.

Just what the symptoms will be depend on the form the pericarditis takes. If it produces an effusion—that is, if a lot of fluid is thrown out, filling the heart sac and crowding the heart—then it becomes difficult to breathe. A sensation of pressure and suffocation is produced. There is apt to be some pain, although it may not be pronounced, but sometimes it is stabbing and severe.

There may be considerable fever. Cough, restlessness, rapid pulse and sometimes delirium are other symptoms.

Fortunately, pericarditis is rarely fatal. The common type, that which follows rheumatic fever, is particularly favorable as to outcome. In the treatment, more important than all the other things combined, is the absolute quiet which must be had. The first indication is to keep the heart down to the slowest possible action. To accomplish this there must be physical rest and mental rest. Noises, odors, jarring—everything which can possibly excite in the heart must be suppressed.

When a child is the victim, the pain and distress may be relieved by applying an ice pack over the chest. Anything which is helpful in allaying excitement is beneficial, because it aids in keeping the heart action down.

The after care is important. Sunlight, fresh air and massage will help a lot. Your doctor will prescribe the remedies.

Sousa and His Band in Golden Jubilee Tour to Appear at Fair in Concerts Twice Daily

The strains of "Stars and Stripes Forever", "Semper Parvallis" and other stirring marches, played under the direction of their famous composer, will float over the Ohio State Fair Grounds during the week of August 27.

America's beloved "March King", John Philip Sousa, and his band will appear twice daily at this year's Fair, according to an announcement from Director of Agriculture, Charles V. Truax.

An incident illustrative of their wide popular appeal occurred some years ago, when Sousa and his band were touring in Germany.

John Philip Sousa

They encountered an American traveler who asked who all these uniformed compatriots of his might be.

"We are members of Sousa's Band," he was told.

"Sousa's Band?" said the puzzled traveler, "I never heard of it."

"You have never heard of Sousa's Band?" shouted one of the musicians. "Stranger, I don't know what part of America you come from, but I'll bet ten dollars to one that your town isn't on the map."

No man in public life in the United States for the last fifty years is more familiar or more popular character. His life story is the romance of a patriot through the years from the Civil War to the present time, of a staunch American, and of a citizen of the world. At fifteen he was a teacher of violin; at seventeen a conductor of operettas; at twenty-six years a national figure as a director of the United States Marine Corps Band. For thirty-six years he has been the dominating spirit of Sousa's Band, favorite entertainer of the American people, on tours at home, in Europe and around the world.

Sousa is the only man to hold commissions in the three branches of the armed forces of the United States. He was a lieutenant of Marines from 1880 to 1892, a lieutenant in the United States Army during the Spanish American War, and a lieutenant commander in the Navy during the World War. It is by the latter title, as of the Naval Reserve Forces, that he is now known.

The high esteem in which this genial conductor and his band are held throughout the country may be shown in a unique and emphatic way. It is the only musical organization of its magnitude that has ever been able to stand on its own feet financially. It has never been subsidized, and has never depended on gifts. The sale of tickets is its only source of revenue, yet it has always been a financially sound organization, even in these later years when its expenses have approached $2,000,000 a season.

This year, Lieutenant Commander Sousa is heading his band in a Golden Jubilee Tour of the country, celebrating the fiftieth year of his career as bandmaster, and the thirty-fifth year as leader of his own organization. It is in the nature of a triumphal tour, renewing old acquaintance and making new friends. The citizens of Ohio are fortunate in having the opportunity of enjoying one of the few extended visits of this famous musician.

For the engagement at the Ohio State Fair, Sousa's organization will consist of almost a hundred bandmen, many of whom will appear as soloists, Miss Winifred Bambrick as harpist, and Miss Marjorie Moody as soprano.

Sousa and His Band in Golden Jubilee Tour to Appear at Fair in Concerts Twice Daily

The strains of "Stars and Stripes Forever," "Semper Fidelis" and other stirring marches, played under the direction of their famous composer, will float over the Ohio State Fair Grounds during the week of August 27.

America's beloved "March King," John Philip Sousa, and his band will appear twice daily at this year's Fair, according to an announcement from Director of Agriculture, Charles V. Truax.

An incident illustrative of their wide popular appeal occurred some years ago, when Sousa and his band were touring in Germany.

John Philip Sousa

They encountered an American traveler who asked who all these uniformed compatriots of his might be.

"We are members of Sousa's Band," he was told.

"Sousa's Band?" said the puzzled traveler, "I never heard of it."

"You have never heard of Sousa's Band?" shouted one of the musicians. "Stranger, I don't know what part of America you come from, but I'll bet ten dollars to one that your town isn't on the map."

No man in public life in the United States for the last fifty years is a more familiar or more popular character. His life story is the romance of a patriot through the years from the Civil War to the present time, of a staunch American, and of a citizen of the world. At fifteen he was a teacher of violin; at seventeen a conductor of operettas; at twenty-six years a national figure as a director of the United States Marine Corps Band. For thirty-six years he has been the dominating spirit of Sousa's Band, favorite entertainer of the American people, on tours at home, in Europe and around the world.

Sousa is the only man to hold commissions in the three branches of the armed forces of the United States. He was a lieutenant of Marines from 1880 to 1892, a lieutenant in the United States Army during the Spanish American War, and a lieutenant commander in the Navy during the World War. It is by the latter title, as of the Naval Reserve Forces, that he is now known.

The high esteem in which this genial conductor and his band are held throughout the country may be shown in a unique and emphatic way. It is the only musical organization of its magnitude that has ever been able to stand on its own feet financially. It has never been subsidized, and has never depended on gifts. The sale of tickets is its only source of revenue, yet it has always been a financially sound organization, even in these later years when its expenses have approached $2,000,000 a season.

This year, Lieutenant Commander Sousa is heading his band in a Golden Jubilee Tour of the country, celebrating the fiftieth year of his career as bandmaster, and the thirty-fifth year as leader of his own organization. It is in the nature of a triumphal tour, renewing old acquaintance and making new friends. The citizens of Ohio are fortunate in having the opportunity of enjoying one of the few extended visits of this famous musician.

For the engagement at the Ohio State Fair, Sousa's organization will consist of almost a hundred bandmen, many of whom will appear as soloists, Miss Winifred Bambrick as harpist, and Miss Marjorie Moody as soprano.

Cupid Snares

Mary Garden, prima donna and stormy petrel of American opera, who, reports from abroad say, will trip to the altar with Pierre Plessis, French newspaper publisher. Recently Miss Garden underwent a “face-lifting” operation in Paris, but it was performed in her own hotel suite to dodge unwelcome publicity.

Gorilla Fussy About His Sleeping Place
The main apparent preoccupation of the male gorilla is fighting for the continued possession of his wives. As the family party moves along through the forest, rarely sleeping twice in the same spot, there is every night the business of making beds. For the gorilla has at least this in common with his human cousins, that he likes and demands a comfortable sleeping place and, what is more, he prefers to make his sleeping arrangements well before darkness falls.
For this purpose paterfamilias bends down saplings and covers them with leafy branches, while the member of his harem, who are sent up neighboring trees, make each her own bed in a suitable fork by breaking off branches within her reach. Their beds are never very high up—never too high for the old man to be able to keep his eye on them. You may find chimpanzees nesting in the treetops, but never gorillas.
Once I had a chance of studying this proceeding. I made my camp close to two parties of gorillas. My own bed was made in five minutes, but the gorillas took twenty minutes to finish theirs to their liking, and probably were more comfortable than I. They are certainly very fastidious in this matter. Even when they remain in the same spot for a few days they make fresh beds every night, sometimes even in the same trees as the night before, but in other forks.—Dr. N. A. Dyce Sharp, in the Continental Edition of the London Daily Mail.

“Lost Chord” Dear to Heart of Composer
Arthur Sullivan sketched out the complete setting of “The Lost Chord” while he sat by the deathbed of his brother, Frederic. It was his last composition for many months. The song, when published, swept the world, and the inevitable penalty of popularity followed—it was parodied, to Sullivan’s disgust. He wrote to the parodist: “I wrote ‘The Lost Chord’ in sorrow at my brother Fred’s death. Don’t burlesque it.”
Sullivan gave one of his manuscript copies of “The Lost Chord”—those scribbled notes that had come from the depth of his suffering—to his lifelong friend, Mrs. Ronalds, a famous American hostess living in London. She was a very gifted amateur singer and Sullivan openly said that she alone brought tears to his eyes with his own notes. Mrs. Ronalds’ rendition of “The Lost Chord” was famous. King Edward—then prince of Wales—once remarked that he would travel the length of his future kingdom to hear Mrs. Ronalds sing “The Lost Chord.”
When she passed on the manuscript was, by her instructions, buried with her.—Kansas City Star.

The Lesson
If youth, with all its progressive-ness and buoyancy, could only learn one great lesson that comes with advancing years, so much disillusionment and unhappiness would be prevented. If youth could only learn, while it is still youth, that there are certain fundamental things which it cannot do and “get away with,” certain things that must be done and must not be done, certain things that are not only conventional but essential, half the tears of boyhood and girlhood would never flow.—Grove Patterson, in the Mobile Register.

His Recovery
“At one point in my career I was given up by seven doctors to die,” stated Uncle Feebles. “The three local physicians gave me up, and then four doctors from farther away gave me up in rotation, each from his favorite incurable disease. Later they all gathered around in solemn conclave and gave me up in unison from seven different maladies for which the medical profession knows no cure. Soon after, because they were letting me alone, I got well on my own hook.”—Kansas City Times.

Harnessing Tides
The most practical system as yet suggested for harnessing the tides is the basin system, because it permits large scale installation. It consists of one or more basins cut off from the sea by dams. As the tide rises and falls gates permit the maintenance of differences of level water between the basin and the sea, or between one basin and another during part of the tidal cycle. These differences in level produce the necessary heads of water for production of power through turbines and auxiliary machinery.

Small Demand for Horses
Automobiles, trucks and tractors are supplanting the horse to such an extent in Australia that the steeds are being sold for next to nothing. At a recent horse fair at Panmure, the highest prices paid were between $5 and $10 a head. One farmer shipped 20 horses, and after all charges including freight had been paid, he received $1.87 in full. Had the auctioneer not remitted certain unloading and driving charges, the farmer would have owed him money.

Flag for Army Dead
Until recently the American colors were draped about a soldier’s coffin, regardless of his rank, yet only an officer of the rank of major or higher was entitled to have his coffin preceded by the regimental and national flags. The regulations now prescribe that at all military funerals, without distinction of rank, the colors, when available, shall be displayed and be carried with the escort.

Cupid Snares

Mary Garden, prima donna and stormy petrel of American opera, who, reports from abroad say, will trip to the altar with Pierre Plessis, French newspaper publisher. Recently Miss Garden underwent a “face-lifting” operation in Paris, but it was performed in her own hotel suite to dodge unwelcome publicity.

Gorilla Fussy About His Sleeping Place

The main apparent preoccupation of the male gorilla is fighting for the continued possession of his abode. As the family party moves along through the forest, rarely sleeping twice in the same spot, there is every night the business of making beds. For the gorilla has at least this in common with his human cousins, that he likes and demands a comfortable sleeping place and, what is more, he prefers to make his sleeping arrangements well before darkness falls.

For this purpose the family huddles down saplings and covers them with lanky branches, while the member of his harem, who are sent up neighboring trees, make each her own bed in a suitable fork by breaking off branches within her reach. Their beds are never very high up—never too high for the old man to be able to keep his eye on them. You may find chimpanzees nesting in the treetops, but never gorillas.

Once I had a chance of studying this proceeding. I made my camp close to two parties of gorillas. My own bed was made in five minutes, but the gorillas took twenty minutes to finish theirs to their liking, and probably were more comfortable than I. They are certainly very fastidious in this matter. Even when they remain in the same spot for a few days they make fresh beds every night, sometimes even in the same trees as the night before, but in other forks.—Dr. N. A. Dyce Sharp in the Continental Edition of the London Daily Mail.

“Lost Chord” Dear to Heart of Composer

Arthur Sullivan sketched out the complete setting of “The Lost Chord” while he sat by the death-bed of his brother, Frederic. It was his last composition for many months. The song, when published, swept the world, and the inevitable penalty of popularity followed—it was parodied, to Sullivan's disgust. He wrote to the parodist: “I wrote ‘The Lost Chord’ in sorrow at my brother Fred's death. Don't burlesque it.”

Sullivan gave one of his manuscript copies of “The Lost Chord”—those scribbled notes that had come from the depth of his suffering—to his lifelong friend, Mrs. Ronalds, a famous American hostess living in London. She was a very gifted amateur singer and Sullivan openly said that she alone brought tears to his eyes with his own notes. Mrs. Ronalds' rendition of “The Lost Chord” was famous. King Edward—then prince of Wales—once remarked that he would travel the length of his future kingdom to hear Mrs. Ronalds sing “The Lost Chord.”

When she passed on the manuscript was, by her instructions, buried with her.—Kansas City Star.

The Lesson

If youth, with all its progressive-ness and buoyancy, could only learn one great lesson that comes with advancing years, so much disillusionment and unhappiness would be prevented. If youth could only learn, while it is still youth, that there are certain fundamental things which it cannot do and “get away with,” certain things that must be done and must not be done, certain things that are not only conventional but essential, half the tears of boyhood and girlhood would never flow.—Grove Patterson, in the Mobile Register.

His Recovery

“At one point in my career I was given up by six doctors to die,” stated Uncle Leveles. “The three local physicians gave me up, and then four doctors from farther away gave me up in rotation, each from his favorite incurable disease. Later they all gathered around in solemn convulse and gave me up in unison from seven different maladies for which the medical profession knows no cure. Sooner after, because they were letting me alone, I got well on my own hook.”—Kansas City Times.

Harnessing Tides

The most practical system as yet suggested for harnessing the tides is the basin system, because it permits large scale installation. It consists of one or more basins cut off from the sea by dams. As the tide rises and falls gates permit the maintenance of differences of level water between the basin and the sea, or between one basin and another during part of the tidal cycle. These differences in level produce the necessary heads of water for production of power through turbines and auxiliary machinery.

Small Demand for Horses

Automobiles, trucks and tractors are supplanting the use to such an extent in Australia that the steeds are being sold for next to nothing. At a recent horse fair at Farnworth, the highest prices paid were between $3 and $10 a head. One farmer shipped 20 horses, and after all charges, including freight had been paid, he received $1.57 in toll. Had the auctioneer not retained certain unloading and driving charges, the farmer would have owed him money.

Flag for Army Dead

Until recently the American colors were draped over a soldier's coffin, regardless of his rank, yet only an honor of the rank of major or higher was entitled to have his colors draped by the regimental and national flags. The regulations now provide that at all military funerals, without distinction of rank, the colors, when available, shall be draped and be carried with the escort.

MANY AUTUMN FASHIONS BUILT AROUND ENSEMBLE FOR GIRLS

Manifold Weaves In Silk and Wool Spell Success For Costumes.

By WINIFRED OVITTE

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Merchandising views on popular college girl fashions for fall center mainly, as in general sports wear, on the ensemble. It is a costume type to which designers have given so much variation, and which has achieved so much appeal through the manifold weaves in both silk and wool, that its success may be regarded as one to continue.

Buyers in the exclusive shops along Fifth Avenue, who, in their general selections, retain for special promotion types that will attract the student, are unanimous in their endorsement of both the jacket and long coat versions.

Jacket ensembles are expected to have their widest appeal in jersey fabrics, since it is pointed out that from the angle of price and practicality they offer the utmost of service for the college girl.

Cardigan is Good

The cardigan, collarless and unadorned, is indicated as the best coat type in three-piece models, not only in the short ensembles, but in the long models as well, of knitted fabrics and lightweight woollens. As one buyer aptly puts it, "Anything with a cardigan is good, whether in silk, wool or jersey."

While the ensemble of the thick-yarn woollens, which have been so important in the fall collections, are not promoted expressly as a college item, buyers offer the arguments in important in the fall collections, are fashioned so that the long coat, whether furled or plain, may be converted to the separate winter coat, an important item in the student wardrobe.

"Many girls would rather spend a good sum for an attractive three piece ensemble, and arrive on the campus looking the last word in fashion, than buy a moderately priced winter coat and dress," says a buyer.

Girls More Critical

"The college girl is looking with a more critical eye on fashions today than ever before," she continues, "and it is more likely that in cases where the price question is not too problematical, she will choose something with distinction."

There are manufacturers who supply skirts with winter coats, having the idea of catering to those who insist on the ensemble as the only smart costume interpretation.

A special point is made of the tuck-in jacket suits in three-piece provided with either a mannish shirt or a sweater that may be worn with a yoked shirt. There is particular comment made on the sweater in this style, since more of the younger girls like the tuck-in types for summer wear. One store which advanced this fashion in the spring found it so successful they are planning special advertising for it in the fall.

One-Piece Frocks

The new sheer woollens that have been exploited so much for the new season are expected to give impetus to the sale of one-piece frocks, which, it is said, have come forward with more assurance this season. Although the two-piece in sportswear, as a whole, has been pre-eminent for the college girl, the slim, tailored, one-piece frock, is expected to become an important consideration.

Due to the popularity of the trench coat, leather coats are expected to have an even wider activity with the more youthful clientele. Jacket lengths are regarded with more favor since the longer lengths are limited to wear in the extreme cold weather.

The trench model has been offered in such varied media for fall that it stands out as the very best college girl knockabout coat for fall and winter. A type that will be exploited by an exclusive specialty shop is fashioned of a glove suede fabric which is guaranteed washable, and offered in a wide range of colors. Since these retail at approximately $25, they become the ideal extra coat for the college girl's wardrobe.

BOY WHO CAME

milling about the streets and about the grounds before the domeless capitol where most of them will have to stand tonight to hear the governor's address.

Union station was a panorama of special trains, more than 20 of them arriving this morning. Incoming roads resounded with the noise of nervous sirens. Big river boats coughed up to the dock and unloaded their pilgrims. Tammany's loyal sons jostled with each other as they hurried from nine special trains. Prominent party leaders were shuffled about like ordinary citizens.

The nominee joined in the welcome.

Numbers of personal friends drove up to the mansion for a handshake and a word. He was kept busy, as was Mrs. Smith.

During the day, the governor turned his attention to the future, discussing his speaking tour, which will begin soon after Labor Day—with party leaders—Chairman John J. Raskob of the national committee, his running-mate, Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, Senator Peter G. Gerry of Rhode Island, chairman of the advisory committee, Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, who will largely direct the southern campaign, Senator Harry B. Hawes of Missouri, western manager, and others.

The governor was not so busy that he did not take time for chats with many old friends of his early days who are here for the notification.

Yesterday, he took the afternoon off, after a strenuous session testing the broadcasting apparatus and posing for photographers, and played golf with Norman H. Davis, assistant secretary of state in the Wilson administration, at the latter's place in Stockbridge, Mass., about 40 miles away. He returned here last night.

The crowd will begin to seek places to stand long before the notification ceremonies are scheduled. It has been estimated that at least 100,000 will be massed in the park about the capitol and in the streets leading away. According to an official estimate made last night 144,000 can get within this area.

WORKING OUR BRAINS

If you could enter any business or industrial establishment and get well acquainted with the workers, you would in time see that they could roughly be divided into two classes: First, those who use their brain power on their work. Second, those who do not.

The second element are thinking of anything but their work. While their minds wander all over their circle of interests, their hands mechanically perform the job. They do the same old thing over and over again in the same old way.

Some people's jobs are so extremely mechanical that perhaps they can't be done in a different way. But usually when people exercise their mental power on the thing they are doing, they can improve the way they do it.

Then there are the people who put their brain power to work on their job, and who are constantly thinking how they can do that piece of work better, or how they can fit themselves for some more responsible and better rewarded work. Such people learn how to do things in a superior way, and their better service brings recognition.

The ordinary run of people have intelligence enough, but they fritter it away. If they will put their brain power to work, they will not merely secure better results in their occupations, but they will avoid many of the troubles of life. Just a little more brain exercise, and the folks who get smashed up in automobile accidents and those who injure their health by wrong habits would save infinite trouble. Brains were given people to think with, not to fill up the vacant spaces in their skulls.

The operation of thinking is called laborious by some, but if one exercises it a little, it comes easier, and the rewards are apparent.

WOMEN FIND BETTER JOBS

You know, of course, that there was a tremendous increase in the number of American women who worked for their living between 1910 and 1920. Don't you?

Well, you're mistaken. The Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor reveals that the increase in the number of women workers in that decade was the smallest in 50 years.

What really happened was that the number of women in some jobs increased enormously, while the number of women in other jobs decreased. Women servants, for instance, declined in number about 14 per cent, while the shrinkage in the number of women in agricultural work was even greater. On the other hand, the number of women in professions increased 39 per cent, while women in clerical work increased 140 per cent.

Nearly as many women were earning their own living 15 years ago as now, but they were doing it in less pleasant and remunerative ways.

SELF MADE MEN

Both of the leading candidates for president came from obscure and humble homes. They both started at the bottom of the ladder, and worked their way up by their own efforts.

Self made men are sometimes laughed at. It is often remarked they made their careers by their own ability and struggle, and are inclined to brag about it. Some of them delight in spreading themselves more than people who have always had wealth, and newly rich people are proverbially fond of display. But they are not all that way.

A great many of them always continue sympathetic with the environment from which they came. They do not forget the ordinary Tom, Dick and Harry by whose side they struggled and toiled in their early days. One of their principal thoughts is as to how they can lend a helping hand to men and women who are some-

Strive—
What though the goal you have
Be small—
Better a little work than none,
Better to try—than fail.

Strive—

Fight on with all your Power,
And some day when the sun has set
Ah, then will come your hour!

Strive—

You cannot lose a hard-fought

And when the day is done
Success will glide in with the how failing to make good in life. Probably these two men did not at their school age show much more genius than the ordinary boys about them. But there are several qualities they must have had.

First, they must have always been looking for something bigger. When they saw one job of work done, they wanted to go on to something more hopeful.

Second, they must have done thoroughly everything they took up, so that whenever they did a thing well, it led people to depend on them for something more responsible. If people do thoroughly well the things that are given them to do, they can surely obtain promotion, if they go to work for it in the right way.

Qualities like these are not the possession of a few alone. A great many have them or could have them, by a little more grit and resolution, and the number of successful self made men could be far greater than it is.

OUR NEW RESPONSIBILITY

An ordinary photograph sometimes can tell more about what we call the trend of the times than a column of type.

Such a picture came across this desk the other day. It showed a street scene in a small native town in the Philippines, a day's journey from Manila. The town—its name doesn't matter—was in the interior, seldom frequented by white men. Streets were lined with native houses, and brown-skinned men and women, dressed as the Filipinos dressed when Magellan visited them, were bustling back and forth. Queer, ungainly, two-wheeled carriages crowded the roadway. It all looked very outlandish and foreign.

But—and here is the point—mingled in the stream of traffic were a good many highly up-to-date American automobiles. Native drivers piloted Chevrolets, Fords and Dodges in the maze of buffalo carts. There was even a Filipina traffic cop, made necessary, doubtless, by this advent of the motor car.

Now nothing can touch western civilization, with its highly complicated and serviceable machinery, and remain unchanged. The automobile is something like a cake of yeast; drop it into any society and it produces a strange ferment. The Philippines, having reached the point where the back-country natives drive cars will never be the same again.

This does not mean that the Filipino will, in five more years, be indistinguishable from the New Yorker. But it does mean that he is starting in that direction. He is beginning the same process of absorbing an alien culture that has struck a good many other people during the last dozen years. He is, in a strange sort of way, on the verge of becoming Americanized.

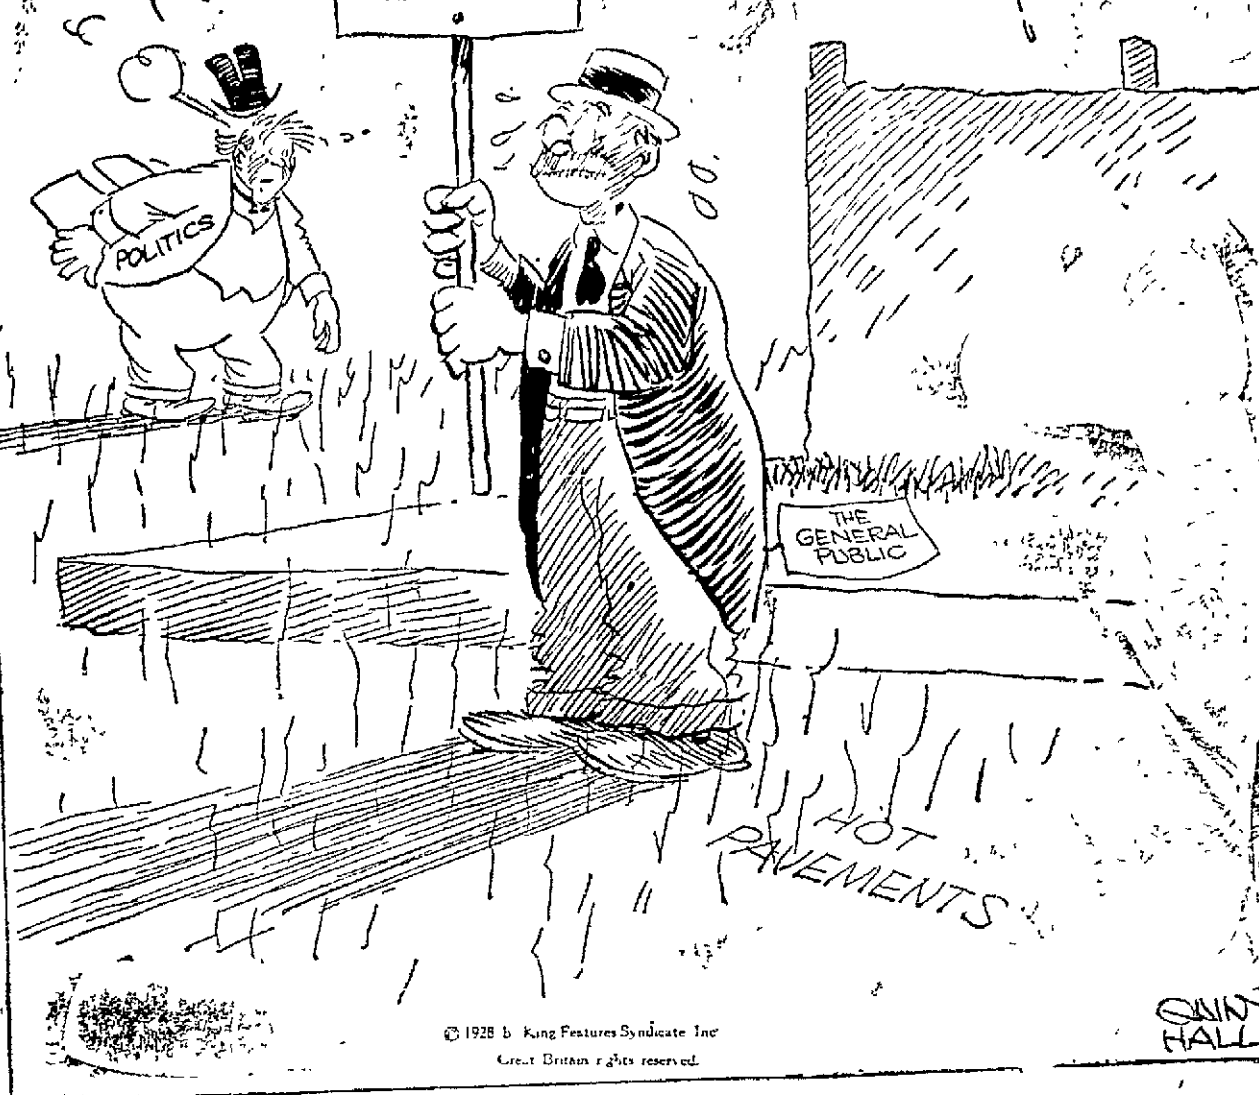

This may or may not be a good thing, from his viewpoint. It is quite possible that the Filipino would be happier if he continued to live as his fathers lived, and let automobiles and radios and moving pictures go by. But, for better or worse, he won't. Destiny, apparently, has picked out America as the nation that shall influence all others for the next century or so. The Filipino can't help himself.

And the Filipino is only one among many. Everywhere, all over the world Americanization is going on. Customs and habits centuries old are giving way to the influence of Detroit and New York. This may be for the best, and it may not; that question is unimportant. It is happening, and there is no way to stop it. A new and sobering responsibility has been thrust upon us.

Philosophy is the comforting revelation that weeds look about as tall as grass if you keep them to men and women who are some-

EXPECTED TO DO SOMETHING ABOUT THAT, TOO!

RELIEF WANTED FROM ANY AND ALL HEAT WAVES

Love's Ecstasy

by May Christie

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

ALEDA RAY, pretty country girl, and Gary Chester, young engineer, are in love. Alela, working as a stenographer in New York, is living with Marise de Renze, whose young, sophisticated sister, Goldie, and Clive Mortimer, ne'er-do-well Englishman, are engaged in a blackmailing game. They receive a "commission" to arrange a party for Smithson, wealthy rounder. Alela and Gary return at midnight from a drive into the country. Goldie, jealous of Gary's love for Alela, tricks Alela into attending Smithson's party and then sends a note to Gary asking him to meet Alela there.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

Chapter XXXV.
A half past eleven at night Goldie de Renze, accompanied by three giggling, highly decorated beauties whose general get-up was really startling, pushed Alela into a taxi-cab.

"Come on! Don't be a spoilsport!"
"Don't throw a monkey-wrench into the works!"
"This way for little Smithson's show!"

Smithson! As the taxi rumbled and bounced on its way towards Goldie's apartment, she whispered to Alela: "Surely it isn't the same Mr. Smithson who tried to tip me five dollars at the Harvest Moon Club?"
"Aw, what of it? You forget it, kid! You're out for a good time!"

Before Alela's eyes arose a vision of the rotund, middle-aged, bald-headed man who (to her mind) had so insulted her by offering money for her services as a dance-partner!

It couldn't be the same. This man was married. Had a lot of children. Lived in the country, Westchester way!

She felt nervous about this party. Like a fish out of water—what would be her role?

But with the memory of Gary Chester's parting words and look and handclasp—how she had thrilled to the enchanting hours he'd spent with him this evening—nothing could really happen down tonight, happen what?

She was barely conscious of the Broadway beauties' chatter. Alela forgot the party. She was wrapped in a high and happy mood. They reached their destination. The giggling girl poured out of the taxi, crossed the foyer of the apartment building, got into the elevator and were shot up to the roof.

A negro butler awaited their arrival. An inscrutable expression on his face, he took their wraps.

Loud salutations came from a long and low-ceilinged living room. Mr. Smithson—the very man who Alela had so disliked at their previous meeting—darted forward, and with a grin on either arm, and shaking the others in front of him, presented each, in turn, to his out-of-town customers.

There was crackling repartee—tremendous joviality. Goldie, in highest spirits, executed a few dance steps. She cried: "Meet the shepherdess and her sheep!"

"Ba! Ba!" bleated Mr. Smithson, waving pudgy arms.

"The lambs to the slaughter!" chorled a "butler and egg" man.

"Oh! Ha! Ha! in the fold! Watch out!" exclaimed another, delighted with his own witticism, and baring a vista of gold-filled teeth. He made a playful grab at Goldie, who eluded him. It was evident he had already "looked upon the wine when it was red."

"A cocktail—quick—to save hat!" plaintively wailed a tow-headed maid.

"The lady's slightest wish is granted!" chanted little Smithson, waving on high a shaker, then pouring potions into glasses on which were painted a rampant bird.

"Come on, everybody! This'll put a kick into proceedings."

One of his friends came forward towards Alela, holding the tray. "No, thanks!" She shook her head.

At the same moment came a sharp pinch on the arm from

Goldie. "Don't be a little prude and a spoilsport!"

She flushed. With a determined jerk that spilled some of the mixture on Alela's frock, Goldie handed the brimming glass to her. "You drink—quick—or I'll make a fool of you in front of the whole crowd!"

A palm grew in a tub immediately behind Alela. She took the glass with shaking fingers, and a few seconds later, when attention was diverted from her, she emptied its contents at the base of the plant.

Goldie came up—saw the flushed face—the empty cup—and murmured, in a modified tone: "Atta girl!"

Alela moved off from her, to an open window giving on the roof. She wanted air—a long, deep breath.

There was a second round of cocktails. This time Alela was left unmolested. Then the negro butler, in a sonorous voice, announced: "Super is served."

At the same moment he drew back a heavy curtain that divided a brick-floored platform or dais from the living room.

There were ecstatic "Ah's!" and "Oh's!" from the female element, as a candle-light and beautifully decorated table, laden with all sorts of viands, was revealed.

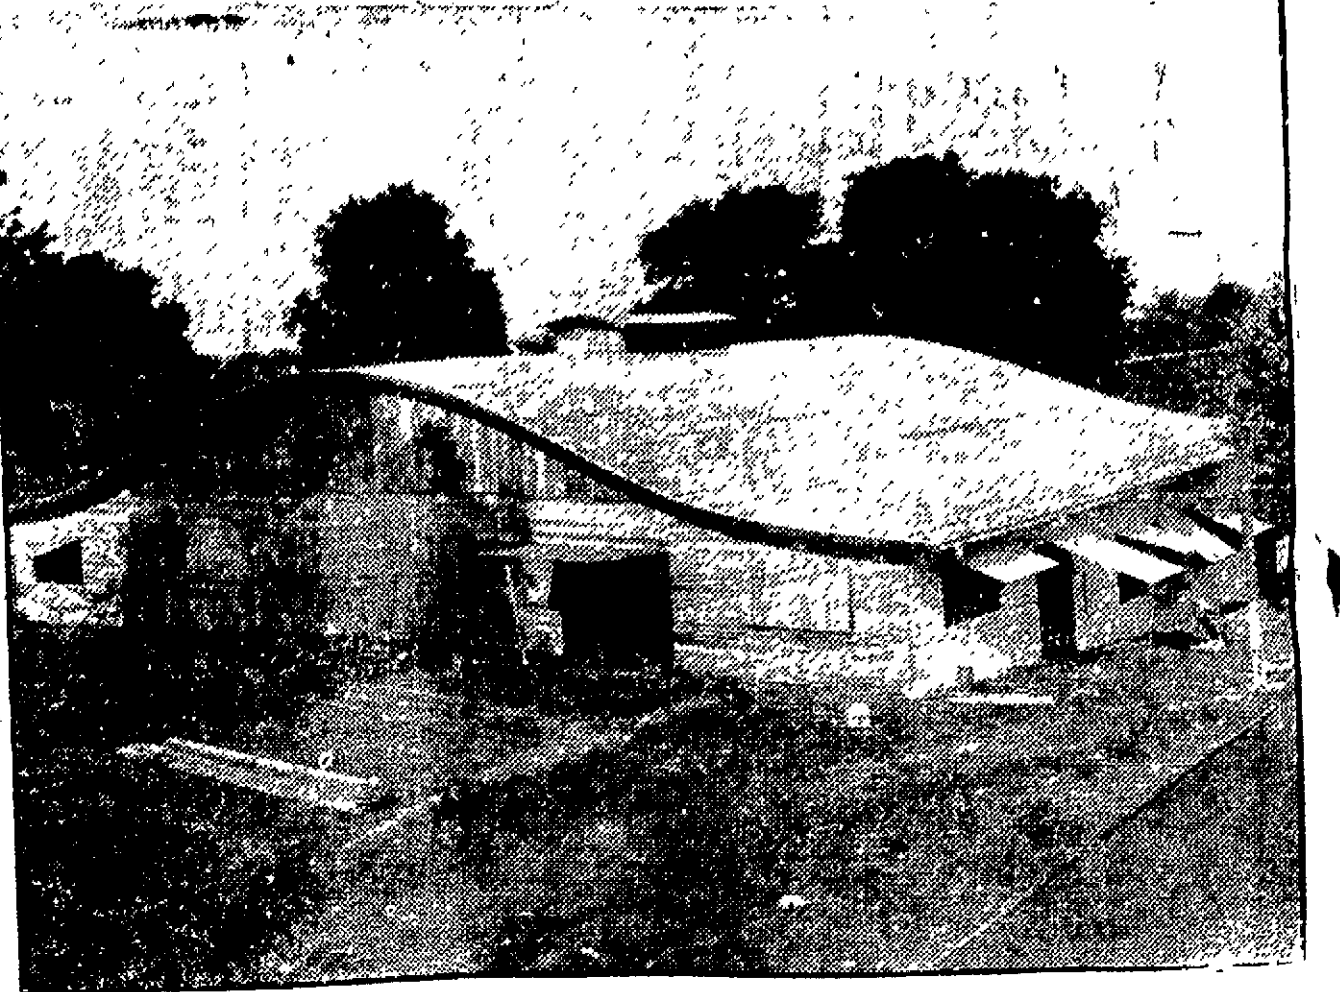

In each girl's place reposed a lovely spray of delicate white orchids, tied with satin ribbon. There was a magnificent centerpiece of American beauties, and trails of smilar ran the length of the table and criss-crossed, revealing here and there a deepured rose.

Metal-banded tubs of ice from which projected long-necked bottles carrying gold labels stood upon a little wagon. Mr. Smithson conducted his guests to the feast, took the head of the table, and, as he termed it, "the fun was on!"

"It wasn't fun to poor Alela. She felt very ill at ease, and—somehow—afraid."

She felt still more apprehensive when, lifting her napkin to the tune of excited feminine exclamations and shouts of appreciation, she discovered—as did each girl at the party—a small vanity case containing a fifty-dollar note!

The eleventh Annual Camp Meeting at Mount of Praise, on E. Ohio-st., is scheduled for Aug. 24 to Sept. 2, inclusive.

The camp meeting follows the twentieth Annual Council Business sessions of the Church of Christ in Christian Union which precedes the camp meeting. The business council has a one week's session.

The preparation for the meeting of the business council and the camp meeting that follows has been going on for a month. The building of an immense tabernacle, together with three dormitories to house the visitors from all sections of the country, and also the building of a big dining room to feed the multitude has been constructed. The sound of the hammer and saw, welded by a dozen or more men has been heard with neither the hot rays of the sun or the dashing rain stopping the work on the big tabernacle or other buildings.

To get an idea of the immense buildings now near completion one should visit Mount Praise.

Last year on the Sunday following the business session, and the beginning of the camp meeting, 6,000 people adherents of the church gathered from all parts of the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and listened to the voices of the Evangelists, beseeching the members to live the purer life and get closer to God. It is the most wonderful gathering of people, who thoroughly believe in the religion, it is the religious belief of Alvin York, the world war veteran who proved to be the greatest hero of the army of occupation, who single handed captured 221 German soldiers, and made them prisoners.

science laboratory, and a four room suite for agriculture, shop and manual training. The building is steam heated, electric lighted, nicely decorated, and well furnished, including a stereophone and a motion picture machine. The Nelson Hitler Memorial Library is one of the finest school libraries in Ohio and there is a nice sum of money available for improvements and additions this year.

Books, pencils, paper, and other supplies are furnished. In other words it is a "free" public school as far as school equipment is concerned. All the parent has to do is to feed and clothe the boys and girls and see that they get on the bus when it comes by the door. When patrons can put such educational opportunity as this at the service of its young citizens, they have a right to feel proud and may justly expect their community to profit by the education these youth secure as a result of this opportunity.

These campers are real Americans, they originally came from the mountain fastnesses of Kentucky and Tennessee, they come of the stock and blood that Abraham Lincoln, Andrew Jackson and Daniel Boone came from; they fear nothing, and when the country's call to arms is heard, although they do not conscientiously believe in warfare, they are found in the front ranks.

The denomination disapproves the using of nicotine in any form, and among the members there are few users of tobacco, on the grounds the use of it is strictly prohibited.

Rev. O. L. Ferguson, who has had charge of the denomination of the Church of Christ in Christian Union, is really the power behind the church. It was he who took charge of the work of the Mission church in the South end of the city when no other minister could be found, and it was again this same man who took charge of the Home and Hospital, in caring for the people left there without care. Mr. Ferguson has been hard at work at the tabernacle sawing away and fitting boards in the floor.

The big tabernacle is 98 feet wide and 106 feet long, it has arch trusses supporting the roof 68 feet long. The floor gradually slopes toward the stage at a four foot elevation. The arches alone contain 2,000 feet of lumber, and there are a number of these supporting the wide expanse of roof. It took 200 rolls of built up roofing to cover the roof.

The location of the tabernacle is ideal. It is built on a hill, and the seating arrangement follows the contour of the slope making the stage at the bottom of the hill. Only a portion of the area is floored, and that is at the rostrum, which is 20x98 feet. The rest of the wide expanse or area in the tabernacle is just terra firma. Big wide gates or doors are thrown open to leave in the light and fresh air. Over head are large ventilators in the roof affording a good clear current of fresh air.

Five hundred people can be fed in the restaurant and dining room at one time. Elaborate arrangements are being made to take care of the crowds that are sure to come. Even the sleeping quarters have been looked after by the management, and both men and women dormitories have been erected. The three dormitories are 16x110; 22x80, and 22x100. They are two story affairs. The dining room is 60x80 feet.

The buildings are located on seven acres of land, and ample provision is being made for the care of the crowd. Last year they came from Tennessee, Oklahoma, Kentucky, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Indiana and West Virginia.

MANY AUTUMN FASHIONS BUILT AROUND ENSEMBLE FOR GIRLS

Manifold Weaves In Silk and Wool Spell Success For Costumes.

By WINIFRED OVITTE
NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Merchandising views on popular college girl fashions for fall center mainly, as in general sports wear, on the ensemble. It is a costume type to which designers have given so much variation, and which has achieved so much appeal through the manifold weaves in both silk and wool, that its success may be regarded as one to continue.

Buyers in the exclusive shops along Fifth Avenue, who, in their general selections, retain for special promotion types that will attract the student, are unanimous in their endorsement of both the jacket and long coat versions.

Jacket ensembles are expected to have their widest appeal in jersey fabrics, since it is pointed out that from the angle of price and practicality they offer the utmost of service for the college girl.

Cardigan is Good
The cardigan, collarless and unadorned, is indicated as the best coat type in three-piece models, not only in the short ensembles, but in the long models as well, of knitted fabrics and lightweight woollens. As one buyer aptly puts it, "Anything with a cardigan is good, whether in silk, wool or jersey."

While the ensemble of the thick yarn woollens, which have been so important in the fall collections, are not promoted expressly as a college item, buyers offer the arguments in important in the fall collections, are fashioned so that the long coat, whether furled or plain, may be converted to the separate winter coat, an important item in the student wardrobe.

"Many girls would rather spend a good sum for an attractive three piece ensemble, and arrive on the campus looking the last word in fashion, than buy a moderately priced winter coat and dress," says a buyer.

Girls More Critical
"The college girl is looking with a more critical eye on fashions today than ever before," she continues, "and it is more likely that in cases where the price question is not too problematical, she will choose something with distinction."

There are manufacturers who supply skirts with winter coats, having the idea of catering to those who insist on the ensemble as the only smart costume interpretation.

A special point is made of the tuck-in jacket suits in three-piece provided with either a mannish shirt or a sweater that may be worn with a yoked shirt. There is particular comment made on the sweater in this style, since more of the younger girls like the tuck-in types for summer wear. One store which advanced this fashion in the spring found it so successful they are planning special advertising for it in the fall.

One-Piece Frocks
The new sheer woollens that have been exploited so much for the new season are expected to give impetus to the sale of one-piece frocks, which, it is said, have come forward with more assurance this season. Although the two-piece in sportswear, as a whole, has been pre-eminent for the college girl, the slim, tailored, one-piece frock, is expected to become an important consideration.

Due to the popularity of the trench coat, leather coats are expected to have an even wider activity with the more youthful clientele. Jacket lengths are regarded with more favor since the longer lengths are limited to wear in the extreme cold weather. The trench model has been offered in such varied media for fall that it stands out as the very best college girl knockabout coat for fall and winter. A type that will be exploited by an exclusive specialty shop is fashioned of a glove suede fabric which is guaranteed washable, and offered in a wide range of colors. Since these retail at approximately $25, they become the ideal extra coat for the college girl's wardrobe.
